NEW COLLABORATION

The first collaboration between Punt and Foster + Partners Industrial Design results in BEAM and COLUMN, two complementary collections of wooden furniture that explore structure, materiality and craftsmanship from a contemporary perspective, translating architectural principles into product design.

Together, they propose an open reading of space. A flexible shelving system and a family of tables designed to support a wide range of configurations across residential, workplace and contract environments.

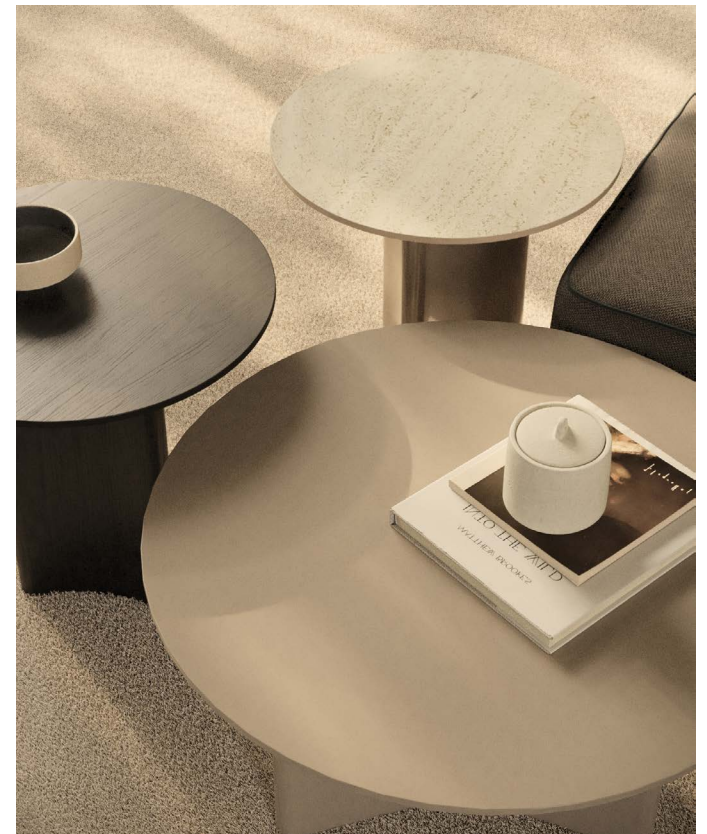

BEAM reinterprets architectural language at a furniture scale, applying the logic of structural beams to an adaptable system that brings rhythm, openness and spatial organisation. Its development includes freestanding shelving units, wall- and ceiling-mounted versions, as well as sideboards, all configurable into multiple compositions. A series of accessories extends the system, integrated trays, bookends, storage drawers and sliding textile dividers, conceived as functional extensions of the whole.

COLUMN presents a family of sculptural tables for both lounge and dining use, developed in different heights and diameters and designed to work individually or in combination, maintaining a balance between presence and lightness.

Made in matte oak or black-stained oak, both collections are available in a range of finishes including lacquer, textile and stone surfaces, reinforcing their adaptability and long-term relevance.

NEW COLLECTIONS

Punt's new collections bring together a series of pieces that expand the brand's design language through a diverse range of typologies, uses and silhouettes. Designed by Monica Armani, Victor Carrasco, Ludwig & Hamilton and Estudi Manel Molina, the collections explore the relationship between functionality, comfort and character across residential, workplace and contract settings.

Designed by Monica Armani, Gonna is built around the idea of an enveloping wooden form that embraces the body like fabric. Its curved backrest, upholstered seat and integrated lumbar cushion enhance the feeling of comfort, while its formal versatility allows for a range of base options suited to different environments.

Victor Carrasco's latest designs share a consistent constructive logic rooted in structural clarity and formal continuity. Porte brings together sofas, lounge chairs, benches and tables defined by an architectural tubular frame. Corte introduces a collection of chairs and poufs characterised by a distinctive U-shaped backrest. Corte System and Corte Bench extend this language into modular solutions, creating flexible configurations. Cil adds a chair and lounge chair with essential lines and balanced proportions, designed to integrate naturally into both residential and contract environments. Vacía offers a sculptural exploration of materials, where marble and metal are balanced in a composition of remarkable visual lightness. Tapón is defined by a process of reduction to the essential, resulting in a side table with a restrained yet precise presence.

Designed by Ludwig & Hamilton, Hidalgo and Legado reinterpret the office chair through a contemporary lens, combining ergonomics, comfort and a refined formal expression to meet the demands of today's work environments.

Designed by Estudi Manel Molina, Hug Executive extends the original collection into professional settings, introducing new backrest options and finishes that enhance comfort and presence while retaining its approachable character.

The proposal is completed by new interpretations of the Sussex sideboard by Terence Woodgate and Stockholm by Mario Ruiz, now available in high-gloss lacquer finishes that offer a brighter, more contemporary expression of their essential geometry.
